

Removing the "established business relationship" qualification from the fax regulations is extremely bad for business, forcing FEWA to obtain the written consent of our own members before transmitting any fax that could be interpreted as commercial in nature. As a very small association with only two employees, our time is already stretched thin with the management of day to day association operations, conventions, etc. The regulation change will add a nightmarish amount of work just keeping up with consent form administration. I urge the reinstatement of the "established business relationship" qualification to the regulation.
